Newcomer's President Patricia, Sherman, and friends Bea and Tony Moras spent two weeks in 2018 on an eco-safari in Kenya sponsored by the African Conservation Centre.

Hosts: Dr. Shirley Strum the world's expert on baboons, and husband, Dr. David Western, an internationally recognized conservationist promoting co-existence between animals and people. Once a year they donate time to this special safari to promote ecology and raise funds for the Maasai.

Our group included two expert photographers. We traveled by single-engine aircraft landing on dirt strips (circling to see if animals were in the way), Land Cruiser, and rowboat. We collected videos and photographs of our adventure (sleeping in mud huts and tents; living with the Maasai). We want to help others understand issues facing wildlife and native people.
